IOWA VISITOR

MRS. SPAULDING ENTERTAINS FOR HER HOUSE GUEST, MRS. BURBERRY

Mrs. Suel J. Spaulding of 121 West Park avenue is having the pleasure of entertaining her sister, Mrs. F. S. Burberry of Indianola, who is chairman of the 7th District of the Woman's Council of Defense for Iowa. Wednesday afternoon Mrs. Spaulding entertained in her honor about fifteen ladies who formerly resided in Indianola but now live in Los Angeles, Hollywood, Pasadena or Long Beach. It proved a delightful reunion. Every guest contributed something to the afternoon's entertainment, an anecdote of old times or a musical number. Mrs. F. C. Olive of Long Beach, a reader of some note, gave several selections, and Miss Louisiana Spaulding, daughter of the hostess, a musician and composer of distinction, also contributed. Oleanders and ferns featured the floral decorations, and a two-course luncheon was served. A special guest was Mrs. Christy, director of the Arizona School of Music at Phoenix, Arizona.

Mrs. Burberry, Mrs. Spaulding and Miss Spaulding were luncheon guests last Tuesday of Mrs. Charles Carver of Pasadena, who also entertained Mesdames Wright and Joseph Brown, former citizens of Iowa.

Tonight the Spauldings and Mrs. Burberry will be dinner guests of Mrs. Victor Rossbach of Hollywood, the dinner being followed by a theatre party.

Next Tuesday they will motor to San Diego to show Mrs. Burberry Camp Kearny and other interesting sights in that part of Southern California.

HAVE AUTO TOPS RECOVERED

The Dustin-Roman Auto Top company, of which John Roman of Glendale is one of the partners, report that they are building up a thriving business. Mr. Roman and Mr. Dustin embarked on this venture about the first of the year in a fine new block built for the purpose on Figueroa street near Eleventh, Los Angeles. Their promptness in covering tops the same day car is delivered to them has appealed to those who wish this work done. They also make a specialty of painting, seat covers, metal work and all kinds of repairing. Some of the Glendale men who have had their autos covered by this firm and have expressed satisfaction with the work done are J. W. Usilton, John Fanset, Jos. Melczer, and J. J. Nesom.

RED CROSS ACTIVITIES IN THE SOUTHERN DISTRICT

The Tropico Branch of the Red Cross has taken over the salvage work which is now under the chairmanship of Mrs. Hartley Shaw, who is being assisted by Miss Ellen Churchill and Miss Minnie Moulton, two very patriotic women who have been active in several drives. Returns have just been received from the first shipment made under the new management, a check for $44, which is highly encouraging to the committee.

Another branch of service which is going forward very satisfactorily is the manufacture of gun wipes by children on the Municipal Playground on San Fernando road. Under the direction of Mrs. Curtis, Playground Director, they have made more than ten thousand wipes.

Regular work has been resumed in the sewing department of the Branch which meets for an all-day session every Wednesday in the municipal building at Brand and Los Feliz road, under the chairmanship of Mrs. Hal Davenport.

The Surgical Dressings Department meets Monday and Wednesday afternoon at the same place under the chairmanship of Mrs. Charles A. Barker, assisted by Mrs. Adams.

BEST ENCAMPMENT EVER

B. F. Patterson of 317 Belmont street, who has been spending eight days at the G. A. R. Encampment at Huntington Beach, is greatly enthused over this year's convention. He was among those who helped to organize the encampment thirty-one years ago and has attended every meeting since but three. He declares this was the best of all and he attributes it to the universal spirit of patriotism which the war has stimulated. He says veterans who have not been there for years came this time, on crutches, in wheeled chairs, and all states of helplessness because they could not reconcile themselves to staying away. One comrade of 92 years was brought by his grandchildren.

SUDDEN DEATH

MRS. G. W. SANFORD PASSED ON AT EARLY HOUR AT HER HOME THIS MORNING

Death has come like a thief in the night to the home of George W. Sanford in Sycamore Canyon. Wednesday Mr. and Mrs. Sanford returned from attendance on the encampment at Huntington Beach, with Mrs. Sanford apparently in perfect health. This morning, Thursday, at 3:30 o'clock, she suddenly expired of heart failure. It is a terrible shock to her husband. Funeral arrangements await the arrival of her daughter, Mrs. Fay Herberger of Rosedale, Cal. Mrs. Sanford is also mourned by three step-daughters, Mrs. W. C. Williams of Glendora, Mrs. M. R. Williams of Monrovia, and Mrs. G. F. Stone of Berkeley. She was prominent in the Woman's Relief Corps and has a large circle of friends who will share the grief of her immediate family.

COMFORTS FOR SOLDIERS AND SAILORS

As announced, the food sale to be held at the Tropico Groceteria on Brand boulevard Saturday will be a benefit for the fund to be used in providing comforts for boys who have gone from that district to the army or navy. Comfort bags have just been bestowed on several men, including Gregg Wilber of 306 North Glendale avenue, (Tropico district), a young man who has been in the employ of the Water Company, who has enlisted as an engineer and who left Tuesday for San Francisco in the expectation of being sent from there to a training school.

Two others who have been similarly remembered are Howard Gaarder and Clare Taylor, both residents of Glendalae avenue, who have enlisted in the navy and are at San Pedro.

A fourth who has received a comfort bag is Horace P. Keeler, brother of Mrs. Chauncey K. Lake of Cypress avaenue. He is a young married man and resided in Glendale for a number of years. He is in the naval reserve at San Pedro. He is just out of the detention camp and thinks he is going to like his new life very much.

FLOWERS' POPULARITY

Among the citizens of Glendale who attended the Montaville Flowers meeting at Boyle Heights Wednesday evening were Mayor G. B. Woodberry, F. H. Vesper and A. T. Cowan. A number of Glendale people will be in attendanec at a Flowers meeting at Highland Park this evening. It will be held in the Ebell club rooms. Mr. Flowers will deliver his famous opening campaign address in Glendale next Tuesday evening.

WEDNESDAY CLUB

The Glendale Wednesday Club was entertained Wednesday by Mrs. Charles H. Sanders of 1320 North Brand boulevard. This is a working club and the ladies have recently completed twenty baby quilts for French and Belgian refugees. With those previously made they have to their credit about fifty quilts and twenty pairs of bootees. The ladies are also working on articles for the Harvest Festival of the Tuesday Afternoon Club. Refreshments of coffee, cake and watermelon were served by the hostess.

MAKING THE OLD DESSERT INTO A PATRIOTIC ONE

A dessert can not be patriotic and have sugar as one of its constituents and yet a dessert can not be a dessert unless it is sweet and delicious. Our problem is therefore to change the old recipe which contains sugar into a new one that is equally as sweet.

Maple sugar, maple syrup, corn syrup, honey or molasses may be used for the sweetening of custards, junkets, gelatine desserts, clear jellies, sponges, frozen dishes, ice creams, mousse, steamed cereal or tapioca puddings or fresh fruits. The choice of the sweetening is a matter of taste.

In place of one cup of sugar called for in the old recipe use one cup of honey or from 1 2-3 to 2 cups of corn syrup. Approximately the same sweetness is obtained.

Since every cup of syrup or honey furnishes ¼ of a cup of liquid for every cup of syrup or honey that is substituted for sugar reduce the original amount of the liquid in the recipe ¼ cup.

Vessels sailing from New York in June were cut more than 25 per cent in their sugar requisitions, to conform to the Food Administration ration.

IMPORTANT DECISIONS MAY BE FORTHCOMING

FAR REACHING SOLUTIONS MAY HINGE ON PRESIDENT'S CONFERENCE WITH COL. HOUSE

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

MAGNOLIA, Mass., August 15.—President Wilson, Mrs. Wilson and his aide, Dr. Grayson arrived here this morning and will probably remain over the week end. They left Washington at nine o'clock last night.

While here the president will visit Col. House.

While it is announced that the trip is for the purpose of a brief rest it is known that there are many diplomatic problems before the administration and that the president has not conferred with Col. House for many months.

Among the problems now receiving consideration are:

The recent hostilities of the Bolsheviki toward the allies.

Mexico's threat to double the tax on oil and enforce other measures for the oil interests in the Tampico fields, despite American and British protest.

The increasing breach between Bulgaria and her Teutonic allies that may cause a possible armistice with Bulgaria.

Diplomats feel that important decisions may be forthcoming.

OVER 30,000 PRISONERS IN PICARDY DRIVE

OFFICIAL REPORT DOES NOT INCLUDE ESTIMATED 10,000 TAKEN BY HUMBERT'S ARMY AND NOT COUNTED

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

LONDON, August 15.—Field Marshal Haig reported today that the number of prisoners taken in the Picardy drive now totals 30,344. Of these the British captured 21,844 and the French 8,500. This does not include approximately 10,000 prisoners that Gen. Humbert's French army has captured and which have not been officially counted as yet.

It is also announced that the allied casualties today in the Picardy drive are less than the number of Germans taken prisoner .

The Echo de Paris today estimated that the total number of prisoners taken since July 15 is 73,000 and 1700 guns.

The French war office reports continued artillery fighting between the Avre and the Oise.

GAIN IN ATTENDANCE

GLENDALE UNION HIGH MAKES LARGEST PERCENTAGE OF INCREASE IN COUNTY

Glendale Union High School is beginning to take on the dumb, expectant look that buildings wear which have been vitalized by much use. Its floors and woodwork have been oiled and polished, its windows washed, its rugs cleaned, its lockers disinfected, and its cornices and iron trimmings are receiving a coat of paint. On its lawns and gardens the sprays from big sprinklers are moistening the soil, all suggesting the opening of school before many weeks have passed. It has no chance to look untenanted because Business Manager Irving Oliver is at his office every day, the High School Board meets there occasionally, Principal Moyse comes and goes, and janitors and workmen pass in and out.

Mr. Oliver says that Glendale is one of the two high schools in Los Angeles county which can show a gain in attendance over last year, and of those two Glendale has made the biggest gain, having increased 37 over an attendance of 512 last year. It will be remembered that 72 students were graduated last year and 150 freshmen taken in. The decrease in many of the high schools of the county has been caused by the shortage of labor and high wages which have tempted pupils to leave school and go to work. This increased attendance has made necessary the employment of three additional teachers. One of these is P. A. Fullen, a teacher of penmanship, who will give half of his time to the Commercial Department of the High School and the balance to the superintendence of penmanship in the grammar schools of Glendale. Mr. Oliver says there has been an additional demand for every subject heretofore taught except German, and that, as already announced, has been cut out of the course. Particularly noticeable is the demand for work in the commercial department which will be enlarged in scope and increased in other ways, making heavier demands upon the time of Mr. Sawyer, who for that reason has been relieved of the penmanship department. All the classes have increased and because many of them will have to be divided, more teachers were deemed necessary. Notwithstanding this increase of the faculty, Mr. Oliver declares the budget will remain practically the same as last year. When asked how this miracle would be wrought, he said it would be accomplished through various retrenchments and economies which had been carefully worked out.

The full list of teachers and directors as furnished by Mr. Oliver and which will probably not suffer change between now and the opening of school, is as follows:

George U. Moyse, Principal.
Harry Lee Howe, Vice-Principal.
Irving Oliver, Business Manager.

HELPING OTHERS

MRS. VAN DYKE APPRECIATES WORK OF COLUMBUS AVE. PARENT TEACHERS

The Columbus avenue school has been an exceedingly busy place every Friday afternoon during the vacation period. Many ladies have gathered there to work for the unfortunate people across the seas, and in so doing we have all realized a little more clearly than before the meaning of brotherly love. No matter how warm the day, the faithful workers have been there, with never a thought of the discomfort it might be causing them, but always keeping in mind the thought of ministering to those less fortunate than themselves. Seventy-six new garments were finished and sent with the last Red Cross shipment. Our shipment was composed of 16 pairs of undergarments, 14 nightgowns, 27 underskirts, 7 aprons, 8-year old size, 12 large dresses.

The president of the Columbus avenue P.-T. A. desires to take this opportunity of thanking the following ladies: Mrs. Cora S. Taylor, our principal, who has worked so faithfully, Mrs. Geo. Blech, who is chairman of buying and cutting, Miss Johnson, our kindergarten teacher, Mrs. Johnson, Mrs. Maud Jackson, Mrs. Chas. Chandler, Mrs. R. M. Brown, Mrs. Wilson, Mrs. Ray Phillips, Mrs. Sprowles, Mrs. A. R. Chappell, Mrs. Pierre Potter, Mrs. J. E. Bellue, Mrs. Empey, Mrs. Chapman and the many girls who have been there each week piecing quilt patches, sewing carpet rags and making comforts. Mrs. Maud Jackson has pieced two quilts ready for tying and presented them to our society. Mrs. Hartley, an elderly lady of 80 years, has also pieced blocks for us, and Mrs. A. W. Jenkins has been kind enough to put the blocks together in quilt form for us. The society deeply appreciates the efforts of the last three named ladies, as they are not members of the Parent-Teacher Association.

MRS. C. M. VAN DYKE,
President.

INTERESTING SHIPPING NEWS

Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Wells have returned from a week's outing at the beaches, in the course of which they visited all the towns from San Pedro to Hermosa. Among the interesting sights which they took in was a battleship in the harbor at San Pedro. They also saw one of our new camouflaged boats, which by means of the excellent work of a skillful painter had been made to resemble a fleet of small boats. They met the captain and first mate of the "Balota," one of our new wooden ships which will transport coal to the Philippines and bring back sugar. Though they enjoyed the change, Mr. and Mrs. Wells were glad to get back to Glendale and its sweet, fresh mountain air and away from briny, fishy smells of the coast towns.

THOWSEN-HANSON WEDDING

Justice Harry Miller performed the pleasant task of uniting in marriage Miss Berndette Rosalie Thowsen and Reuben Crawford Hanson at about six o'clock Wednesday evening. The ceremony took place at the residence of the bride, 1440 West Third street, which had been beautifully decorated with pink lilies for the occasion, and it was witnessed by the parents of the bride and close friends of the contracting parties. A wedding supper was served and the happy couple left the same night for a brief wedding trip. On their return they will be at home to their friends at 1440 West Third street. Mrs. Hanson has been in the employ of the Glendale Groceteria and Mr. Hanson is a mail carrier who handles the rural route to La Crescenta.

COMMUNITY SINGING

Mrs. L. N. Hagood, Curator of the Music Section of the Tuesday Afternoon Club of this city, has been much enthused in regard to community singing by attending the "sing" at Hollywood Tuesday night, when 1200 people were present and took part. These meetings are held at the Hollywood High School and were organized by Mr. Kirkoffer of that community, who has been engaged to organize similar movements in Long Beach and Van Nuys. He has offered to perform the same service for Glendale and Mrs. Hagood and others prominent in musical circles are exceedingly anxious that his offer should be accepted. Some effort will be made to organize in the near future, they say, and they are anxious the public should bear the matter in mind and prepare themselves to support this pleasant form of patriotic activity.

GLENDALE, CALIFORNIA, THURSDAY, AUGUST 15, 1918

CHANGES IN NAMES OF STREETS

Authorized by Board of Trustees of the City of Glendale by ordinance passed July 5, 1918:

Third Street to Wilson Avenue.
Second Street to California Avenue.
First Street to Lexington Drive.
Fifth Street to Harvard Street.
Elrose Avenue and Seventh Street to Elk Avenue.
Ninth Street and Oak Drive to Windsor Road.
Tenth Street to Garfield Avenue.
Sycamore Avenue to Doran Street.
Valley Boulevard to Adams Street.
Tropico Avenue to Los Feliz Road.
Damasco Court and Blanche Avenue to Maryland Avenue.
Lot A. of Witham Tract to be named Chestnut Street, being a continuation of said street.

The United States Government has passed the two million mark in the production of rifles since war was declared.

Up to and including July 27, 1918, the total number produced, inspected and accepted was 2,000,798. This number includes, in part, 1,523,156 of United States Model 1917 and 280,000 Russian rifles. It does not include the 600,000 United States Model 1903 (Springfield) rifles estimated to have been on hand when we entered the war.

Department stores in many of the large cities have called on home demonstration agents to assist them in giving instruction in food conservation to their customers and employes. In some stores special rooms have been equipped where demonstrations are given and literature distributed. Attractive booths have been set in the aisles of others where exhibits of war cooking are shown and recipes are given out. The agents have worked with the window decorators in planning window exhibits. In many places wheat substitutes have been featured in demonstrations, and each purchaser has been supplied with recipes and instructions for using them. Classes for employees after hours have been arranged. In some cities the agent meets these groups regularly every week.

FUEL SAVING

The United States Fuel Administration's conservation bureau reported today a saving at the rate of 350,000 tons of coal annually in its campaign for fuel economy in steam-power plants. This saving has been initiated through the inspection of 300 of the larger plants of the country.

Each of the 250,000 plants in the country will be inspected as fast as the work can be accomplished and it is estimated that 20,000,000 tons of coal can be saved.

This saving has not been effected by any closing down or curtailment of industry and is the result of applying scientific methods to the operation of boilers and engines. It has put money in the pockets of the plant owners and at the same time made available a large amount of coal for war needs and for heating homes next winter.

SUGAR FROM MAIL ORDER HOUSES

Restrictions have been put upon the shipments of sugar by mail order houses. Until now mail-order houses have been taking orders for 25-pound quantities of sugar for home canning, regardless of the State from which they come or whether there is a real need for sugar for canning in that State. In some States, out of regard for fruit crop conditions or for other reasons, sales of canning sugar are restricted to 10 or 15 pounds at a single purchase. When a resident of one of these States can obtain 25 pounds by merely mailing his order to a city in another State, he is defeating the purpose of the present regulations, which have been established because of the sugar shortage.

Federal food administrators have been instructed to furnish mail-order houses with copies of sugar regulations in their States, and the houses will conform to them in all orders sent to those States. All regulations will be applied equally to mail-order houses and retailers, in order to be fair to everybody concerned. Federal food administrators who have a certificate system for sugar for canning may require the mail-order houses to send sugar into their States only on such certificates.

Mail-order houses are expected also to conform to the rule permitting city dwellers to buy only 2 pounds of sugar at one time for ordinary household use, and country people 5 pounds, save in districts remote from the stores, when local administrators may permit larger quantities to be sold.

VALUE OF RED CROSS DOLLAR

The Red Cross authorizes the following:

Based on actual experience during the first three months of this year, for each dollar of Red Cross money spent in furnishing relief supplies we accomplish the same as $1.50 would accomplish if spent through an efficient commercial organization for the same purpose. This 59 cents which your dollar gains when spent through the Red Cross for relief supplies is made possible:

First. By the enormous amount of free labor donated by millions of Red Cross workers throughout the country, comprising one of the greatest producing organizations in the world.

Second. Through the ability of our purchasing department to secure the aid and co-operation of governmental institutions, both our own and our allies, for obtaining supplies at less than commercial market values; and also through the great generosity shown to the Red Cross by many manufacturers and merchants in their willingness to give us substantial concessions from recognized established market prices.

Third. Through shipping space furnished without cost by our own and allied governments and by various steamship companies.

Fourth. Through numerous miscellaneous facilities furnished us without cost for handling supplies; such as warehouse and port service, insurance obtained without payment of brokerage fees and similar services.

This gain of 59 cents has been figured without taking into consideration the great warehouse and other facilities placed at our disposal by the French. Italian, English and other allied governments; the value of services rendered by the large number of volunteers who without compensation are devoting their entire time to Red Cross work; cables which are sent free of charge in some instances and at greatly reduced rates in others, and a large number of other factors which, if it were possible to state in dollars and cents, would undoubtedly increase to a great extent the value which the Red Cross adds to the dollar you give.

PATENT OFFICE VACANCIES

The United States Patent Office authorizes the following:

A number of vacancies exist in the grade of Fourth Assistant Examiners, carrying the salary of $1,500, to which the attention of technically trained persons is earnestly invited.

Permanent appointments will be secured by passing the required Civil Service Examination, information whereof may be had upon application to the Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C.

Temporary appointment may be given persons exhibiting the required training in mathematics, chemistry, physics, mechanical drawing, and French or German, pending their taking the Civil Service Examination and obtaining a rating therefrom.

Persons not subject to the draft for military service and having the necessary education are invited to write to the Commissioner of Patents relative to temporary appointments.

Promotion to the higher grades is reasonably rapid; the work commends itself to college and technical school graduates especially, is considered as interesting as any in the Government service, and in many of its branches is held very important in the prosecution of the present war.

The dental requirements of an Army of more than 5,000,000 men can now be met by the present force of the Dental Corps of the American Army. Examinations for dental officers have been closed and no further additions will be made to the corps for at least six months.

Restaurants and hotels are restricted to two pounds of sugar for every ninety meals served. This includes sugar for kithcen as well as table use.

Almost 70 per cent of all the sugar consumed in this country is used in the households. So it is up to the women to make the sugar go around.

Naval officers and their families who buy at commissary stores have gone on the honor system of sugar purchase established by the Food Administration for civilians.

Out of the last harvest the American people, by abstinence, saved 140,000,000 bushels of wheat to feed the hungry Allied nations; and these same people are going to stay right on the sugar job and see it through.

The present household sugar ration—with little chance of increase—is two pounds a month in America, two pounds in England, one and one-half pounds in France, and one pound in Italy.

Every producing farm is a dynamo of victory.

We are heirs of great happenings. Shall we surrender our inheritance?

Many of the larger hotels of the country are using no cane sugar in pastries and desserts.

Sugar bowls have been banished from American dining cars—a traveler is served his portion of sugar and no more.

HON. MONTAVILLE FLOWERS

Gives Congressman Charles H. Randall's Record, Basing His Arguments on Minutes of Congress. He Proves Present Congressman Voted Wrong on Seven of Eight War Measures and Demands His Defeat By Patriotic People of the District

Following are the seven measures on which the vote of Charles H. Randall marked him as a pacifist. This record was compiled by the National Security League and was quoted by Montaville Flowers in his address at Korbel Hall last night:

No. 1—Kahn Amendment to the Hay Army Bill; March 23, 1916. This amendment sought to increase the Regular Army to 178,000 or more, nearly approaching the recommendation of the General Staff of the Army. Randall voted wrong.

No. 2—Brandegee Amendment to the Hay-Chamberlain Army Bill; April 18, 1916. This amendment provided for an army of 250,000 as against 140,000. Randall voted wrong.

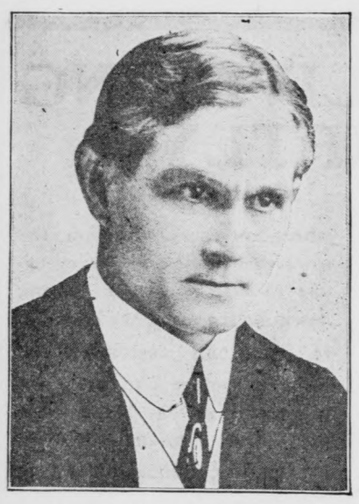
No. 3—"Section 56," Providing for a Volunteer Reserve Army Wholly Under Federal Control; April 18, 1916. Randall voted wrong.

No. 4—Motion to Recommit Naval Appropriation Bill; June 2, 1916. This motion was designed to secure an increase in the navy beyond what was provided in the original bill .Randall voted wrong.

No. 5—Cooper Amendment; March 1, 1917. This amendment was designed to prohibit to American ships their legal right to carry arms or ammunition in their cargoes. Randall voted wrong.

No. 6—Declaration of War Against Germany; April 5, 1917. Randall voted wrong.

No. 7—Kahn Amendment to Conscription Act; April 23, 1917. This provided for the raising, by conscription, of the necessary army to give effect to the declaration of war. Randall voted wrong.



C. H. Randall, present Congressman from the Ninth District, was weighed in the balance and found lacking the principles that go to make up a patriotic statesman, according to the careful analysis made by Montaville Flowers in an address delivered in Korbell Hall, Boyle Heights, Wednesday evening, to an appreciative and enthusiastic audience.

Mr. Flowers in prefacing his remarks said he had no fight to make against Mr. Randall so far as Mr. Randall's prohibition activities are concerned. Mr. Flowers said, "I stand for a dry nation and a dry state."

However, said Mr. Flowers, Mr. Randall is not asking to be returned to Congress on his prohibition record, but on his war record and on this subject he appeals to the voters as though they were pacifists, and why he should think the people of the Ninth District belong to that class is a mystery to all patriotic citizens. Mr. Flowers reminded his audience that the eyes of the whole Nation are turned upon the actions of the people of the Ninth Congressional District on the question of electing a Congressman free from the taints of pacifism.

Following is the substance of the well-delivered address which was the opening of Mr. Flowers' campaign against the present incumbent in Congress.

First of all, I want it clearly laid down that I do not oppose Mr. Randall's position on the liquor question. I do criticize him for the ridiculous way and the inopportune times and places Mr. Randall has chosen to promote his pretense as the leader of the temperance movement, and later I will give an illustration of what I mean. I do criticize him, as the men in Congress criticize him, for gathering unto himself the wonderful work of the W. C. T. U., and of such immortal women as Frances Willard and Mrs. Rutherford B. Hayes, who was the first woman to take wine from the table of the President of the United States, and all the other thousand agencies that have long labored against the liquor traffic.

Mr. Randall is not now, nor has he ever been, the leader of the Prohibition movement in Congress. He is not even a commanding or influential figure in that regard, but to use the statement of a Congressman to me—Mr. Randall has the greatest facility to get credit for things he has not done of any man in Congress.

I wish to read into this record the fact that through this great movement, which reaches 20,000 cities and towns a year, the cause of temperance has been made a direct issue.

In 1910 I was elected to the presidency of the International Lyceum Association of America, which is the general body representing the whole American platform, and in an inaugural address delivered at Winona Lake, Indiana, on September 4, 1911, I laid down the seven principles for which the Chautauqua movement of America must stand. It was the first time these principles had been put into concrete form. They were approved and accepted, and have definitely influenced this whole movement, and the sixth principle so laid down, which you will find in the Annual Report of 1911, page 25, is as follows:

"Our sixth principal is temperance. We fight the habitual use of alcohol as a beverage. We oppose the open saloon. We believe the business in alcoholic beverages is wrong and should be removed from our civilization."

Therefore, I say that the present state of temperance legislation in America and in Congress is the result of this vast and long-continued education of the American public, which had its great leaders both in and out of Congress long before Mr. Randall came into any public life. And I can claim for myself at least as long a career and a far broader influence in the development of that public opinion, which has led to this legislation, than can Mr. Randall himself. (Applause.)

I make this statement in order that it may be perfectly clear to the citizens of the Ninth Congressional District that to maintain and to advance the interests of a "dry" people, and a "dry" State and a "dry" nation and a "dry" world, will only be in accord with my attitude and labor upon this question for more than thirty years.

But Mr. Randall does not make prohibition the issue of this campaign. The political document with which he has covered the district does not mention prohibition. Mr. Randall has thrown into this campaign but one issue—"The War Record of Charles H. Randall." Upon it we propose to meet him, upon it he must stand or fall. But before passing it I will say that with me prohibition is an issue in this campaign, for which I stand and it will continue an issue with me in every campaign whether or not I am a candidate, until every State of the Union shall be free from the delusion and the slavery of alcoholism—and the Nation shall stand erect, sane, sober and efficient before the world.

Beyond Mr. Randall's activities in behalf of temperance, all of which have been highly advertised and over-played, he has nothing to his credit of a constructive nature that is worth considering. While, on the other hand, upon the greatest problem and the greatest activity the world has ever seen, Mr. Randall has stood wrong at the beginning and by nature he stands wrong now. I mean the world war.

His War Record

He is attempting to disguise his war record in his latest material, franked wholesale throughout this district—but he can not cover up his discreditable pacifist past by defying or belying the records.

Mr. Randall has not the first trace of statesmanship. Mr. Randall has neither foresight nor hindsight. His acts proclaim him the ultrapacifist and his words proclaim him so—and I propose to lay before you the exact facts to substantiate these statements and to prove to you that Mr. Randall has had and has now the mind of a pacifist. As such he can neither represent the glorious patriotism of this district nor the gallant men who have left the district to fight the war, nor can he be of any service in the reconstruction period after the war, for he has neither perception nor sympathy for the great principles upon which reconstruction must be based.

There were eight preparedness and war measures considered by the Sixty-fourth and Sixty-fifth Congress, which are taken as the test of pacifism and patriotism. Randall has been trying to hide behind President Wilson and he prints a statement by Champ Clark in large type—but he can't get by, for these are the eight bills which President Wilson regards as a test, for he opposed the candidacy of Congressman Slayden of Texas, because Slayden voted wrong on seven of them, just as Randall did. Slayden even voted for the declaration of war, but Randall voted against it. Randall says that the acid test is the McLemore resolution of March 7, 1916, but that resolution had nothing whatever to do with preparation for the war or the declaration of war. The acid test for a pacifist is: how did he vote on the preparedness measures and on the declaration of war? Randall voted wrong on all seven of them. Randall voted wrong on five preparedness measures; he voted wrong on the declaration of war, and he voted wrong on the test amendment to the Conscription Act. Randall was a consistent opponent in thought, act and vote on all preparation measures for war in 1916. Here are the seven measures on which Randall is marked down a pacifist: (Here Mr. Flowers quoted the record at the head of this article.)

Mr. Randall excuses his pacifism and his opposition to preparedness measures by the old excuse that "There are others" who voted with him. The Ninth Congressional District has no relation to these others.

But after all there were very few others whose ignoble example Mr. Randall can cite. There are 435 members of Congress. There are only twenty-two of these who have Randall's record of voting wrong on seven out of eight bills. The people of the other districts in the other States are eliminating these men as fast as they come up. Wherever true Americanism and patriotism live, no matter to which party these blind statesmen belong, they will be eliminated from the next Congress of the United States. (Cheers.)

Pure Pacifist

The attitude upon preparedness is the true test of a pacifist, and by this test Mr. Randall is a pacifist 100 per cent. pure, because he stood and voted against every test preparedness measure. He stood against the increase of the Regular Army to 178,000; he stood against the increase of the army to 250,000; he stood against the volunteer reserve army that should be under Federal control; he stood against the increase in the navy; he stood against the right of our ships upon the sea to carry arms and ammunition in their cargoes, and he stood against the conscription act by which even after the declaration of war we might secure an army to fight the war, and he stood against the war itself, as he freely admits.

Mr. Randall constantly excuses himself in his franked literature by attempting to show that he acted in accord with President Wilson. He charges that President Wilson owed his election to the campaign cry, "He kept us out of war." He even leads one to believe that this campaign cry was used for the purpose of electing President Wilson. This whole plan of Randall's defense is illogical and untrue, and every man who now supports the President must resent it. Especially should every Democrat resent it and spew Randall out of his mouth and out of the Democratic party. (Prolonged applause.)

Mr. Randall has not supported President Wilson. For every measure upon which Mr. Randall stood wrong President Wilson desired to be passed, and we need no further proof of this fact than that President Wilson immediately signed these measures as soon as they were passed.

And Mr. Randall stood against President Wilson and voted against the declaration of war after President Wilson asked Congress to declare war.

Obstructionist, Too

Mr. Randall, throughout the time that Congress was preparing for war, and after war was declared, has not only been a pacifist, but he has been an obstructionist. Time and again he has arisen upon the floor and stopped legislation on important matters by injecting some remarks or some amendments which are wholly out of order, and not apropos, and which in themselves are foolish and reactionary.

The last paragraph of Mr. Randall's campaign literature, in every sentence is so full of pacifism that it is incomprehensible. He repeats his former declaration: "Most wars have been dishonorable wars, and history will substantiate it."

What ignoble sentiments are these to be spreading before the youth of our land at this tragic moment of our history, when we are trying to teach our boys that this war is an honorable war, and to teach all of our people to ennoble themselves with the spirit and the labors of war? What effect would this have upon our boys at the front if Mr. Randall could distribute this literature as freely there as he has distributed it here?

Why should Mr. Randall discuss dishonorable war in relation to the United States? Does he mean to say that American wars are dishonorable wars? Was the Revolutionary War a dishonorable war? Was the War of 1812 a dishonorable war? He asserts that the Mexican War was a dishonorable war, and tries to cite high authority to that effect.

What a damnable doctrine to be spreading over the United States and Mexico and the world at a time when our relations with Mexico are and have been of the most delicate character. What more combustible fuel than that could he feed into the Mexican flame? When a member of Congress at this time tells the Mexican people that he thinks the Mexican War was a dishonorable war, what further encouragement could they have against the United States? (Applause.)

Mr. Randall here places himself in the same class with the German Zimmermann, who wrote to Mexico and promised her if she would make war against the United States that she could have back her States of Texas, Arizona, New Mexico and California. We find Mr. Randall on the side of Zimmermann in Mexico, and the logical conclusion of his statement is that our State of California and the very district that he represents has an immoral standing in history, and always will have an immoral standing in history because the war that established them as parts of the United States was an unrighteous war. And this man asks the Ninth District to return him to Congress, where he may continue to repudiate our honor and the integrity of the nation.

In the same sentence he attacks the Spanish-American War. He says it was begun "for a high and noble purpose, but the facts are disclosed in State Department records that Spain had already agreed to get out of Cuba," and the inference is that the Spanish-American War was a dishonorable war. What further fuel could he feed into the war spirit of Spain or into the war spirit of the Philippine Islands, which we acquired in that war?

Has Randall no power whatever to see the results of his remarks in Congress? He continues: "The Maine was blown up, as we thought, by the enemy." Why insert the imputation "as we thought"? Why at this time should we throw a doubt upon the fact that the Maine was blown up by the enemy and thus bring discredit upon the American people?

And yet this man seeks nomination by the Republicans, whose great leader, William McKinley, walked up and down the floors of the White House in agony when he found that the Maine had been blown up and that we must go to war to avenge the honor of our country. Why should Mr. Randall destroy the fair name of McKinley and seek to destroy the honor of the Congress of Republicans who declared and conducted the Spanish-American War? With a deep cynicism he finishes his sentence by saying, "The Maine now lies buried in deep water, where the mistake may not become too well known."

"Wild Hysteria"

And then comes the final charge and Mr. Randall's final estimate of the American people and the American press. He says: "While our own representative in Madrid was begging by cable for a day or two longer to complete the evacuation agreement, a wild hysteria took possession of our people, inflamed by rabid war newspapers." What a God of judgment have we here! And Randall says that the American people were not sane when we declared war, but that we were possessed with a "wild hysteria." If we were in a "wild hysteria" in 1861, then perhaps we were in a "wild hysteria" when we declared war in April, 1917.

I can assure Mr. Randall that if it is this "wild hysteria" upon which he depends to re-elect him to Congress that he will be deceived, and that a sane and sober and patriotic people will repudiate him as he has repudiated them before the whole nation. (Cheers.)

He says that the people were "inflamed by rabid war newspapers." Let the press of America take note.

The sentence is finished with this declaration: "And the result was the death of 1600 noble young men in that war." The meaning of that sentence is that the blood of these young men is upon the heads of those who declared and conducted this war.

I ask Mr. Randall if he believes that, and since he voted against the preparedness measures and voted against the declaration of the present war, will he believe that the death of the noble men in this war, dying for the democracy and the liberty of the world, are unrighteous and unholy deaths, and on some future day will he arise and cast a shadow of doubt upon our noble sons who are now in France?

Mr. Randall's next two sentences are unworthy of a child in the kindergarten. It is the most asinine and foolish sentence on the Congressional Record, for he says, "Little enough of history is true, anyway." Who but Mr. Randall knows what that sentence means?

All history is true; in fact, history is the only thing that is true. Theories may be false; suppositions may be wrong; heaven and earth may pass away—but the records of the deeds of men who form history are as permanent as time and as true as God. Let the teachers of history quit their teaching and let the stories at the mother's knee forever cease. Mr. Randall says "there is very little true in history anyway," and thus he proves himself a perfect pacifist, for pacifism repudiates history.

Are We Pacifists?

But why does Mr. Randall make this tirade against our wars and dishonor America for engaging in these wars and make a pacifist's appeal to the people of the Ninth District? There is but one answer. It is because Mr. Randall thinks that the people of the Ninth District are a pacifist people. It is because he thinks that this kind of material will appeal to them and that they will vote for him because they agree with him. The purpose of his campaign literature is to make votes, and he has chosen this method to make them. What grounds Mr. Randall may have for taking this position nobody but Mr. Randall knows, unless indeed there be some treacherous and unpatriotic individuals, secret pacifists and pro-Germans to whom this repudiation of our history may appeal.

The people of the Ninth District are fairly on trial before the Nation. Mr. Randall has made these remarks before the Congress of the United States. He has distributed them everywhere. Every intelligent man and woman can read the meaning that lies full and foul upon the face of them. A vote for Mr. Randall is a vote against war. It is a vote to indorse Mr. Randall's charge that our wars are dishonorable wars; that they have been declared by "hysterical persons"; that they have been "inflamed by rabid war newspapers." It is a vote which will declare to the people of the United States and to the world, that the people of the Ninth Congressional District are pacifists and pro-Germans, sending to Congress a man to repudiate the work of our soldiers at the front.

Such is the record—such is the campaign—such is the present judgment and conscience of Charles H. Randall.

Never has a duty been so clearly laid down before the people of a Congressional District as now lies before you, and that duty is to select another man of ability, of integrity, of bravery and of pure American patriotism, to represent you before the Nation and before the world.

A Pledge

I have placed myself before your consideration for the high office which Mr. Randall now holds. If you elect me I will never betray you in Congress, nor shame you before the Nation and the statesmen of the world. I dedicate every cell of my brain, every nerve and muscle of my body, every stretch of my whole ability, and every bit of my heart to the prosecution of the war and to carry high in the national Congress amidst all the complex and great problems before the world the banner of the Ninth Congressional District, in loyalty, in patriotism, in soberness and in sanity, and in pure Americanism. (Applause.)

The candidates in this campaign will soon be forgotten, as all other men are forgotten. But if you returned Charles H. Randall to Congress upon his record; upon his pacifism; upon his campaign literature; upon his cruel and unjust estimate of American wars and of the whole American people and of our history—if you do that—that can never be forgotten nor will the Nation forgive it.

Republicans, you are the ones upon whom that grave responsibility and duty rests. In the name of the founders of the Republican party; in the name of all its glorious statesmen and soldiers and sailors of the past—Lincoln and Grant and Hayes and Harrison; the martyred Garfield, and the martyred McKinley; the militant Roosevelt and the lovable Mr. Taft—I charge you to your duty.

Redeem this party and this district in the eyes of the Nation and of the world. Stand once more for supreme ability; for clear conscience; for bravery to speak and to do what is right; stand for the mother and the wife and the daughter at home; stand for the soldier at the front; stand for the sailor upon the sea; stand for God and home and native land. (Prolonged applause and cheering.)

CALIFORNIA'S RECORD

That California has "gone over the top" in food conservation and production, and in all other war activities, was the gist of an informal statement issued by Federal Food Commissioner Ralph P. Merritt, the first since his return from a tour of the state, during which he had ample opportunity to find out "what the other fellow is doing."

"Magnificent" was the word the food chief used to describe the measure of co-operation the people of the state are giving in food conservation. In remote farm houses, among the forest rangers and sheep herders in the mountain fastnesses, and in the summer resorts of high and low degree, Merritt said he found practically 100 per cent observance of the food rules and restrictions.

Summing up he said:

"During the first year of food administration, of the people and for the people, the nation, by saving and thoughtful use of resources has gained these ends:

"For our sailors at sea and our soldiers overseas, ample provision.

"For the Allies, maintaining the common cause, salvation from famine.

"For the armies, renewed courage to keep a steel wall between us and destruction.

"For the community of free peoples a stronger unity of purpose.

"For the future, a more resolute will to go on through sacrifice to victory."

Merritt made a strong plea for conservation of sugar in the homes during the present crisis as a patriotic duty, and the continuance of other conservation measures.

Grocery stores are advised that they should not refuse to honor canning sugar permits from the woman director of food conservation if they have sufficient sugar on hand to fill them. Complaints have been received throughout the state that many grocers have adopted this practice which is wrong. A certain allotment of sugar was made to each grocer to supply the canning demand and he is expected to take care of his customers as long as he has sugar on hand for canning purposes. When his own supply runs short he may apply to the local food administrator for an additional allotment for canning.
